THE PARISH REGISTER OF ST MARYS, BURLINGTON, N J

The Records of St. Mary's Church, (Episcopal), of Burlington, N. J., are contained in several volumes, but only the jirst, which is of genealogical and historical interest is here reproduced. This volume shows considerable decay, and is exposed to destruction by fire, as no special provision for its preservation has yet been made. Some years since, the Reservation Di. Hills, then rector of this church, made a list of the names appearing in this volume, and inserted it in his history of this edifice, but as it lacks dates, it really is little less than an index to this volume.

The copy here reproduced is verbatim et literatim, save an occasional contraction in the spelling for brevity's sake. A comparison with Dr. Hills, list may show some seeming discrepancies in the spelling of names, but a careful consideration of the original text prompts me to hold for the accuracy of this copy.

Here hes a faithful follower of her Lord, Who with a humble heart her God ador'd Of meekness, patience, gentleness possessed, Of wives, of parents, and friends the best. For liberal hand did feed and clothe the poor, Who often in distress approached her door, The Widow and the orphan found her kind, But few such friends to them are left behind, Affection warm and strong she did possess, The benefits of which how many miss, We weep, but will not murmur or complain, Since our loss to her is greater gain. Now her immortal soul hath taken flight, To dwell with saints in realms of glorious light.

Richly endowed with Nature's gifts of mind, heart, and person, with a sound judgment, and playful fancy, an amiable temper and engaging manners, affable, but modest, lively, but discreet, a sincere and generous friend, a pattern of filial duty and affection, a tender, faithful, and loving wife she charmed the social circle. and blessed the domestic sphere. equally admired, respected, and beloved. a christian in faith, in heart, and in life, reverencing God, and submissive to his will, she adorned his gifts with humility, and bore his inflictions with patience, and young in years, but ripe in virtue, worn with suffering, but firm in hope, she calmly sunk [sank?] to rest

The records of Middletown, Monmouth County, N. J., consist of five volumes, viz. The

First Town Book, 1667-1695. The Second Town Book, 1699-1800, a book of "Estrays," 1731-1851, a book of "Cattle Marks," 1699-1853, and the "Town Poor Book" They have had many vicissitudes. The first volume had been unheard of for years when it was discovered by Gov. Joel Parker. While in his possession, in 1880, I made my copy, which is here reproduced replating of literatum. Subsequently it was returned by him to the town officials, and has again been lost *

At various times I have seen all these volumes, but now the most diligent inquiry only reveals the whereabouts of two, viz the book of "Estrays" and the book of "Cattle Marks"

The First Town Book is probably the oldest document of any size in the State of New Jersey, and possibly with one exception, (Newark), is the only perfect record of any settlement on the original Nicolls' patent, most of the records of the towns on this land grant having either been lost or much mutilated

Between December, 1664, and December, 1666, the settlement of Elizabethtown, Middletown, Shrewsbury, Woodbridge, Piscataway and Newark, was effected by English people who came from Long Island and New England. The Dutch who held these lands prior to 1664, defeated all attempts to settle in this region by burdensome restrictions. When, however, the Dutch were overthrown and the English became supreme, Nicolls, the Governor of the Province and representative of its owner, James, Duke of York, granted two patents, which, from their liberal character, drew many settlers to this tract of land. These grants were known as the Ehzabethtown and Monmouth Patents and within their limits grew the towns above enumerated

After a brief ownership the Duke of York conveyed to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret that portion of his domain which included these grants from Nicolls - Though this transfer from the Duke of York to the Proprietors was made at a date anterior to Governor Nicolls' patents, no news of the transaction had reached this country. The patents were applied for, issued and received in good faith by both parties, and no questions arose concerning their validity until the settlers had located themselves upon their giants and had further extinguished the Indian titles to the lands

In the meanwhile the divided domain was represented by two Governors, Nicolis ruling for the Duke of York, and Philip Carteret for the New Jersey Proprietors The latter soon

* In 1903 this book had not been found, nor had it been seen since 1884, when it was in the possession of Edward Hartshorne, Esq., now deceased, by whom it may have been loaned to others. The statement made in Ellis' History of Monmouth Co. N J, that their quotations were made directly from this book is an error, Mr Hartshorne assuring me that the compilers of this book had only been shown this valuable record, which is proven, as they have copied such typographical errors as were made by the Monmouth Democrat in printing my commenced to exercise his prerogatives by enforcing taxation and creating laws which infringed the rights of the settlers under the Nicolls' charter. They rebelled promptly and in retaliation the validity of their land titles was questioned by Carteret who declared that they were null and void from being issued at a date later than the Duke's transfer to the Proprietors, that the Duke, represented by his agent, Nicolls, could not sell that which he did not own. On the other hand the settlers maintained that Nicolls' acts were legal, he being vested with governing power until reheved or staved by an official notice to the contrary, and that, while he was superseded in England by the date of Carteret's commission, he was still the head of the government in New York, until his successor arrived, and his acts during this time were binding, especially as he lacked any knowledge of the Duke's conveyance to the Proprietors. This dispute was waged for many years and it is upon this interesting period in New Jersey State history that the old town book sheds much light.

March 17 1668-69. In a legall towne meeting, tho major partt beeing present it was this day putt to the vote, concerning answering the demands of Luke watson and Samuel Moore, who were authorized by the generall assembly to demand our positive resolution of submission to the government of the absolute lords proprietors as sayth the act, bearing date the 7th of november, it was unanimously resolved that this following act shall bee our positive resolution and shall bee presented to the generall assembly 1/2. That if the oath of alleagance to our Soveraigne lord the king, and Fidelity to the lords proprietors. Interest bee, the submission intented in the act, this is our result. That as true Loyall subjects to the king, were are ready at all demands, either to engage, sweare, or subscribe, all true alleagance to his rotall majesty of England, as in duty bound either before the governour, or any other minister of Justice authorized by him to administer the same, without any equivocation or mentall reservation as true locall subjects ought to doe and this wee will perfourme absolutely xx.

As to the Lords proprietors Interest

It beems a new unheard of thing to us and so obscure to us that at present wee are ignorant what it is yet as men not void of Judgement knowing right well that all oaths engagements or subscriptions ought to bee administred and taken in truth in righteous nes and in Judgement upon weh consideration wee are not willing to sweare to (wee know nott what yet by what hath bin presented and come to our hands from the Governour at severall times viz it an order or law came in the yeare 1666 prohibiting any from selling wine to the Indians under great penalty though it seems now that above the quantity of two gallons may bee tollerated by a law 2d warrants comming to our hands nott in his maiesties name but in the lords proprietors names beeing such a name as wee simple creatures never heard of before 3d an acount that our deputies gave us beeing returned from the generall assembly held in November last who informed us that the honored Governour tould them (speaking concerning their pattent) that notwithstanding your pattent said heely yett new lords must now have new lawes.

[page] 13 and further they declared to us that the governour toal them that governour Nicolls could not give away his master's lands and further said that when your pattent was in granting that captaine James Bullen my secretary putt in his caveat and see putt a stop to it Captaine Bullen then affirming the same 4th 5th [Sic] An order comming from the Governour and Counsell bearing date the 1 of March (68) prohibiting the townes of Middleton and Shrewsbury from electing any officer or any officer from executing any office upon penalty of beeing proceeded against as mutineers 6th an act of the generall assembly stiling (the right honorable John Lord barkley and S[ir] George Cartrect) the absolute lord proprietors xx By all weh wee conceive that the lords proprietors Interest is not only the absolute soveraignity from with all laws must be given but all soe, the absolute propriety, from with all lands must be holden (wee say) if this bee, the interest soe specified in the Governors late order, and intended in the oath, and in partit the submission demanded by the act.

This is our result

Wee having received a pattent from his Roadl highnes the Duke of Yorkes Deputy owning us nottonely to have purchased our lands from the cheric proprietors of the countrey but all see impowring us to give prudential lawes to our selves, both for our safety, and our well beeing, and should wee submit to the interest, soe faire, as by either engaging, svearing, or subscribing to the lawes of the government under the lords proprietors, how contrary and prejudiciall would it bee to our present safetys withes a law made the last generall assembly, giving liberty to sell wine to the Indians, with liberty tends meerely to our destruction many sad former experiences have wee had among us withnessing the same, it beeing a liberty soe contrary to the lawes of New Yorke from whence our pattent had its originall over and besides (our pattent giving us such liberty) as giving laws to our selves, how are wee bound to take lawes from the government of the lords proprietors, (criminally and apeals excepted) by with its mainfest, that neither the lords proprietors nor the generall assembly can in the least breake our liberties and priveledges, butt wee ourselves will bee found to bee selfe violators of them in submitting by swearing

[page] 14 to such and Interest as wee are nott bound to besides at present noe provision beeing made by the lords proprietors Government, for the conservation of the liberties and priviledges of our pattent they are hable to bee infringed upon by such acts with are resolved by the major vote in the generall asembly, then how should wee submitt by swearing to the lawes of the government, and not bee guilty of selfe violation of our pattent our selves x. And for as much as they are stilled the absolute lords proprietors ffrom hence it is absolutely granted and necessaryly followeth that all such inhabitants as lives upon this propriety are absolute tennants to the lords to the lords proprietors, and by vertue of this their submission by oath to their Interest are irricoverably invovid to pay such lords rents as will answer the Interest to web they have sworne and should wee submitt to the Interest see farre as by swearing thereunto. RECORD

BAPTIST CHURCH, MIDDLETOWN, N J

The records of the Middletown-Baptist Church have been poorly kept — Prior to 1712 none are known

From 1712 to 1735 they are meagre and suddenly stop, and leave us uninformed of church matters, until 1785. Space has been left between these dates, 1735–1785, from which it would appear that former church clerks kept their records loosely, and often as personal, rather than church property, with intent to insert them at convenient time, and such has recently been proven the case by the discovery of Elder Mott's Journal

The book, in possession of the church, is a large parchment bound folio, and opens

"THE CHURCH RECORD BEGUN DENOVA JUNE ANNO DOM 1712"

"At a meeting y^c 31st day of May Anno Dom 1712 Ordered y^t y^c foore first Leaves of this book be Cut out and Set[3] out y^t it may be ——— knowen how many leaves are Cut out by Order of said Meeting

"Att ye yearly meeting May ye 24th Anno Dom 1712", an agreement was made to submit differences, to friends from Philadelphia, in the matter of the regularity of excluding John Okison from the church as a member, and whether, if they find him guilty, he be allowed to preach

After a lengthy digest of the disturbance the referees decided upon a course, adopted in eight articles, which left the church the privilege to select Bray or Okison and to which they, the referees, subscribed

INSCRIPTIONS

THE BURYING GROUNDS

01

MONMOUTH COUNTY, N. J.

In walking through the closters of Westminster Abbey you may see at your feet lines in brass and stone, now nearly effaced. They once recorded, in eulogistic verse, the pious acts or suntly monks or the mighty deeds of valuant knights. But, alas, like the dead whose memory they were ever to keep fresh, they too have passed into dust, and we are left to conjecture what they were and to pender over the effects of time. It is now too late to rescue these epitaphs, and no man can unbosom the secrets of these stones. The same profound feeling of regret that I experienced there has more than once been awakened in looking into the burxing grounds of old Monmouth. Here, as in the old Abbey, has time been at work, and more than one stone stands mute. This country is young compared with others, yet old enough to have a noble history of its own, and the essential element of that history is the action of To save all that which pertains to them is absolutely necessary, and too long already has been the delay. While much is lost we can, by way of atonement for past neglect, rescue that which remains, and there is no field which calls for prompter attention, or which will prove more profitable to the historical and genealogical student, than the old gravevards scattered through Monmouth County - It is difficult to realize that the fair fields of Monmouth were once covered by a forest, messive and trackless. Following the arrival of the settler, clearings were made and humble homes were erected. There were no attempts made at display, no vying to outdo the other, but an intense, carnest effort on the part of each to develop his own resources. They who first penetrated here were men fitted by previous experience to grapple successfully with all obstacles, and soon they transformed portions of this wilderness into "garden spots". Many of them had reached mature age and not a few were advanced in years, so that oaly a short time clapsed before some of their number were had low in death All communicating roads were, as yet, more foot-paths, and no common place of sepulchre had yet been thought of and could not have been attained, even it desired from the unopened condition of the country and the yidely scattered locations of the settlers, hence, as deaths occurred, all families were forced to bury on their own kind. Later, those who were conneeted by manage or who had the claims of kinship or friendship, were laid to rest in these origin 4 ph ts.—Still rater, when religious societies erected church offines, it become a common custom to after here ith their shadow, and in more than one instance the graveyard has outhyed the church? Slowly the churchyards have filled, and as a consequence the large cometeries now in use have been set apart. What the future has in store it is hard to say, but if the story can be read in the experience of the past, time will leave no greater trace of the tombstone than it does of the body over which it was reared

Already many have gone, and with them a priceless historical note - some gone by the action of time, some by the destructive hand of min, who, in his greed for the quarter acre lot, has cast down the rails, ploughed over the mounds and incorporated the headstones in the masonry on his farm **

In nearly all instances, the earlier deeds contained reservations protecting these primitive graveyards, but in the frequency of transfers they have of late, been omitted, and, even when not, the occupant has sometimes disregarded his obligation and leveled them to the ground t However, in justice let it be said that some, even where no tie of blood exists, have kept these lots in repair, and in other cases, where circumstances have made it desirable that they should be abolished, they have removed all that remained to the larger concernes, with due regard for those who were living as well as with proper reverence for those who were dead 77

It will be observed that no tombstone antidates the year 1709, the earlier ones, it any ever existed, are destroyed. Doubtless the first generation of settlers had monuments erected over their graves, but whether of a lasting kind is much to be doubted. The scarcity of graves made it no difficult matter to fix in mind the occupant of each, and it was only as interments mercased that it became necessary to distinguish one from another. Hence the mound of stones gave place to the wooden tablet, and this in turn to the tombstone. Among the oldest ones time has made serious inroads, and before another decade will have passed many will have become indecipherable. While the record of an interment may be preserved here, it must somer or later, come to pass that, as the epitaph becomes obliterated, the exact location must be lost, and for that I can see no help.

THE PRESBYTERIAN EURYING GROUND

On the South side of the highway running through Middletown may be seen, standing close to the road, ar enclosed graveyard. In Summer it is somewhat obscured by the dense growth of shrubs and weeds, but in Winter, when the leaves have fallen, it cannot fail to attract attention. It has between the farm of Dr. Edward Taylor on the West and the farm of the late Crawford Hendrickson, Esq., on the East - It was here that the Presbyterian church was creeted, and where in turn the Rev. Messrs. John Boyd, Joseph Morgan, Samuel Blau, Elihu Spencer and Charles McKnight preached the gospel. In time, both pastors and flock were dispersed, and the church fell into decay. TOPANEMUS BURYING GROUND

MARLBORO, N. J.

Topanemus was the name applied, in the early history of this county, to a locality originally situated in Freehold township, but now in Marlboro. The name is perpetuated by its application to an old gravevard situated on the farm of John Vandevere

It was here through the efforts of George Keith, that a Quaker meeting house was built in or about the year 1692, which subsequently, when he repudiated Quakerism and crossed over to the established church of England, became an Episcopal house of worship. As such it was used for some time, but doubtless later was either rebuilt or substituted by another edifice which they called St. Peter's Topanemus was in no sense a settlement, but merely a church site. The Rev. Thomas Thompson, writing in 1745-1750, Says. The situation of Topanemus, which is distant from any town, is, however, convenient enough to the congregation, and was resorted to by many families in Middlesex county, &c.

At a date subsequent to 1751, but prior to 1760, the church at Topanemus was torn down, and still bearing the name of St. Peter's, was rebuilt in the village of Freehold. Into the new structure was worked a portion of the material taken from Topanemus, and it is in this now

old church that the Episcopal service is still conducted

The site of the graveyard at Topanemus is distant some little way from the road, yet can easily be seen. Trees and underbrush are plentiful, and the stones are moss-covered, fallen and broken, and some unhappily lost. Of the origin of the name there is no certainty, but from its peculiar sound it is presumably Indian.

Elizabeth, wife of Enoch David Thomas, and daughter of James and Janet Abraham, died Jan. 16, 1762, aged 34 years and 12 days.

THE ANCIENT LIPPIT, OR TAYLOR BURYING GROUND

MIDDLETOWN N J

This plot is situated on the farm of Mr. Charles Morford, on the North side of the high-way in the village of Middletown, about five rods back from the road, directly behind the residence of Mis. Blane. The ground was first appropriated for this purpose by John Throckmorton, the 2d, who, in his will written in 1600, makes reservation of it as one quarter of an acre in Middletown, where my father was buried

This property passed to his daughter Sarah, who married Moses Lippit, and from their son. John Lippit, it was conveyed in the year 1754, to Edward Taylor, always however, "reserving and excepting a small piece of ground being enclosed in the burying yard, being in length about eighty-four feet and in breadth about thirty feet." From and after this date it became also known as the Taylor burying ground, which name it now bears to the exclusion of the other. In it are interred John Throckmorton, the 1st, and his sons John and Job. Sarah daughter of John Throckmorton, (2d) and her husband, Moses Lippit, as also several of her children, and Alice, daughter of John Throckmorton, (2d) and ber husband. Thomas Stillwell, and their son John Stillwell and his wife, Mercy Burrows. How many others may be here it is impossible to state. The grayes of many of these enumerated have been unmarked, and time has altogether effaced the mounds, and no trace exists of where they were interred. Some of the old stones have fallen and others are fast losing their epitaphs by reison of their age, but all are still decipherable.

THE HARTSHORNE BURYING GROUND

MIDDLETOWN, N |

The yard is conspicuously situated on the North side of the highway in Middletown village. There are few old stones in the plot, but doubtless there are some early settlers or their immediate descendants buried there, other than the Hartshornes, such privilege being extended to them by circumstances readily imagined. When Richard Hartshore the first, moved from Portland Point to the village of Middletown, he built the old house which still stands on the North side of the street, and which today is probably the oldest building extant in this county. Here he died in 1722, and in his will made mention of a "family burial plot of a half acre on the street, in the orchard east of the house where I now live." Here he was buried, though the knowledge of the exact site is lost

MORFORD BURYING GROUND

MIDDLETOWN, N |

On the farm of Jehu Cooper, adjacent to the bridge crossing the Shrewsbury River and connecting the Middletown turnpike with Red Bank, is the site of an old burying ground

It is stated that there were originally many headstones, but all traces of them are lost, save three lying against the stone wall of an adjacent field. The grave mounds have been kiveled with the plough and the exact site of interment can only be surmised. Mr. Cooper informed me that the Springsteens were buried there, but subsequently disinterred, but where reburied he is not informed, nor can be recollect the names of any others.

It might further be added that the supposed site of this burial plot is in the orchard behind his house, (on the right passing from Middletown to Red Bank), about one acre distant

from the turnpike

QUIT RENTS.

The feud that arose between the Settlers and the Proprictors has been, of late years, fully dealt with in various New Jersey histories, and it is only necessary to briefly outline it here for a proper understanding of the Quit Rents

It seems paradoxical to state that the sparsely settled towns of New England and Long Island were crowded—vet, within a few years after their establishment, such was the feeling of their occupants, and they began to look about for other lands whereon to settle either themselves or their rapidly growing families—With this in view, a number of the English of Gravesend's uled to the Navesink region, December, 1663, to burter for the lands of the Indians, but the Dutch claimed sovereignty, and for the moment defeated their aims—Before many months clapsed, the long-existing friction between the Dutch and English was terminated by the conquest of the former, who capitulated to Col. Richard Nicolls, who had been sent against them by Charles II—with a force of six hundred soldiers, in three vessels carrying one hundred and fifty guns—Nicolls, likewise, hore a commission, as Deputy Governor, under the Duke of York, afterward James II, who had received the lands, now known as New York and New Jersey, from his brother, the king—To rapidly develop this territory, Nicolls in ide generous terms to the willing and cager settlers, which included

- (i) The right to purchase the Indian title without tax of any kind on the part of the Governor,
- (2) To be free from all minner of assessments for the five years succeeding the creation of a town, which was obligatory, and at the expiration of that period to be taxed only for the public rates, as then customary among the English and Dutch,
 - (3) To own the lands absolutely,
- (4) To have freedom of conscience, limited self-government, and the election of their minister, as well as civil and military officers

Not one suggestion was made that they should pay tent for their lands

The tempting pledges held out by Nicolls produced prompt emigration from Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New York, many settlers disposing of their lands and laboriously journeying with their families and belongings to the new Mecca.

Upon April 8, 1665, Governor Nicolls conveyed, to twelve Patentees and their associates, the lands now contained in Monmouth County, and parts of Middlesex and Ocean Counties, with a sea-tront of more than one-half of the present State of New Jersey, in a patent which embodied the promises and stipulations made in his proclamation of Sept. 30, 1664.

The settlers promptly complied with the terms of the patent, but the auspicious conditions under which they started were soon marred by an infringement of their rights by neowners of the land, Lord Berkeley and Sn George Carteret, Lords Proprietors, who had bought the Duke of York's title to the property, and sent as their representative Philip Carteret. who superseded Aicolls in office, and who promptly promulgated new terms imposed by his masters, which ignored the agreements under which they had taken up the lands. Chief among these was the demand of the Proprietors for rent, the right to which was resisted and became the cause of great unrest and revolt. The contention of the settler was that he had in good faith abandoned one home for another, under assurances of no rent for lands which he bought of the Indians, and for which he braved the hardships of a new country, the solitude of a wilderness, and the dangers of the wild beasts and savages, while the Proprietors claimed that the titles given by Governor Nicolls were void, as they were issued at a date subsequent to their ownership of the land, and that he could not grant that which he or his master did not own, to which the settler demurred, answering that Governor Nicolls' acts were binding till he was relieved of office. Defiance, disputes, appeals, friction, nots and imprisonments, covering many years and many changes of ownership, were the outcome. One concession only was made on the part of the Proprietary interests, namely, a grant of five hundred acres of land to such of the Patentees who had laid out money in purchasing the Indian titles accepted by the Patentees, with reservations. The associates, in fear that the despotism which prevailed at home and abroad might work to their lasting injury, reluctantly recognized the Proprietory power by applying for warrants and surveys for their previous grants. upon which Quit Rents were then levied and collected
